The Thomas M. Ryan Center and Bradford R. Boss Ice Arena

More than 100,000 people visit the Ryan Center each year for sports and entertainment. Home to URI men's and women's basketball, the Ryan Center seats 7,700 for athletic events and 8,000 for concerts, lectures, career fairs, and other University events. The Bradford R. Boss Ice Arena is home to men's and women's club teams, youth hockey programs, and other organizations.

URI Athletic Complex

In addition to the Ryan Center and the Boss Ice Arena, URI's athletic complex includes a number of facilities for students.

Meade Stadium

Home to the URI football team, this 5,810-seat facility has been the site of football games for more than a century. A new scoreboard and vinyl seat coverings in the east stands were welcome additions in 2005. Additional renovations of the west stands will provide fans direct access into the Ryan Center concourse for concessions and other services.

Mackal Field House

Mackal Field House features a six-lane, 200-meter indoor track, a gymnastics training area, four basketball courts, and a weight and fitness center complete with weight training equipment, Lifecycles, elliptical machines, and group fitness classes.

Keaney Gymnasium

A 3,385-seat arena with men's and women's locker rooms, Keaney Gym is home to the URI volleyball team. It also houses a 1,600-square-foot athletic training center.

Tootell Physical Education Center

Tootell features three swimming and diving pools for use by student-athletes and the campus community, as well as weight rooms and two gymnasiums.
